

Ethics Considerations Discussion

- ☐ What is manipulation; Does the book teach manipulation?
- ☐ There are two ways of interpreting How to Win Friends and Influence People
 - a. A book aimed at making yourself likable, involving manipulation through words and body language
 - b. Or a book aimed at developing a true interest in other people and improving your communication skills to share ideas effectively
- ☐ Imagine that person who “manipulates”, uses all the tricks to maneuver their audience.
- ☐ Who would you like to be surrounded with? Who would you trust? BE THE PERSON YOU WOULD LIKE TO BE SURROUNDED WITH.
- ☐ Intentions
 - ☐ What do you think negotiation is all about, are you trying to win others versus finding a win-win?
 - ☐ Do you just want to be liked and deceive others that you really wanna hear what they have to say? In the long term, people get a feel for it. People are not stupid. People can tell if you are being dishonest.
 - ☐ Selfishness radiates...
 - ☐ Can we become genuinely interested in others?
- ☐ Your natural way of communication is shaped by the people you were surrounded with.
 - There are communication styles that are objectively ineffective, if you curse after every sentence, they will not hear your message.
 - Changing your behavior isn't necessarily a bad thing. Natural communication styles vary person to person, based on the environments they and some people are

Changing could be a good thing

Where are you on that “Spectrum of Communicators”?

1. Not-Effective Communicators:
 - a. Characteristics: Uses harsh words (e.g., "you're awful")
 - b. Impact: Causes feelings of threat, criticism, and discomfort in others
2. Average Communicators:
 - a. Approach: Often rely on improvisation with inconsistent results
3. Professional Communicators:
 - a. Outcome: They consistently convey ideas that are well-received and accepted, cultivating a following in the process.
 - b. Aim: To elevate attendees from their current communicative abilities to this professional level

Responsibilities in the Class:

1. Cultivating a toolbox tailored for effective communication in international multicultural contexts.

Importance of Good Communication:

Desired Outcomes:

- Promoting positive changes in the local/global communities, whether in school, the city, or other spheres of influence.

Determining Factors: (out of your control, but not fully, you can influence this)

- Social Positioning: While inherent, its perception can be influenced.
- How others feel around you: Can be positively influenced through effective communication.
- Maintaining audience interest: Techniques can be learned to captivate an audience.
- Establishing credibility: Methods exist to enhance personal and message credibility.

Topics to be Discussed:

- How Others Feel Around You: Discussion on the key takeaways from the book.
- Credibility & Social Positioning: Delving into the art of "Rhetoric"

Maintaining Audience Interest:

- Workshop focused on crafting and delivering compelling speeches

Expected Outcome:

- Participants will gain enhanced communication skills, enriching their personal toolbox and providing them with a distinct advantage in their future interactions.